Specialist Panels UK Ltd is proud to produce a range of Isowall insulated panels to the high specification and quality associated with the Isowall brand. Panels are manufactured at our factory in Cramlington, Northumberland, and then shipped throughout the UK.

Isowall insulated panels are the product of decades of development and the experience of many international panel makers and construction professionals. The impressive structural strength characteristics are achieved through the lamination system where the skins are bonded to the core material in a continuous process. This gives the product a uniform flatness and offers panel lengths usually only restricted by handling and transport considerations.

Construction methods utilising Isowall panels are well proven, offering an efficient and cost effective building system. The insulation and fire rated properties make the mineral wool panel ideally suited to high fire risk areas (such as oven areas) or compartmental walls for food factory applications. The hygienic properties of food safe finishes give the panel a clear advantage in food processing areas.

Isowall panels have comprehensive testing and certification in UK, European and world markets.

Specialist Panels UK Ltd has attained ISO9001 certification and the Isowall 'Fire Rated' mineral wool panels we produce have been tested by, and have attained approval from the Loss Prevention Certification Board.

Designers and contractors alike can be confident in the use of the worlds leading insulated panel system.
